

Patricia W. Neely joined Bluefield College in July of 2017 as the Dean for Online and Distance Education. She earned an Ed.D. from the University of Virginia and a MBA from Averett University. Dr. Neely has a rich background in online and distance education serving in a number of leadership roles at Western Governors University, Kaplan University and Old Dominion University. Her research interests include 21st century leadership, instructional technology, and competency-based education. She lives in Richlands, Virginia with her husband and two rescue dogs.